Paul Lesko joined PWCKC in August of 2016, co-founding the St. Louis office of the firm with Brandon Wise. His practice consists of representing individuals, startups, and small companies that have been harmed by larger corporations. With his biotech background, Paul focuses on prosecuting complex technological cases, including patent and class actions. Paul has specific experience litigating GMO crop cases as well as cases focusing on pesticide and herbicide technologies.

Joseph Peiffer is the managing member of PWCKC. His practices consist of representing individuals and institutions that have been harmed by investment banks and brokerage firms, prosecuting ERISA class actions, and representing victims of labor trafficking and those who have suffered catastrophic injury. He has co-authored a treatise Litigating Business and Commercial Tort Cases, which is published by Thompson West.

Joe has also taught and lectured extensively. He co-created and taught a class entitled Storytelling and Advocacy at Loyola Law School. In one such case, the plaintiffs have alleged that the defendants have failed to pay overtime, improperly deducted for employee housing, and held the plaintiffs passports while in the United States. He has travelled extensively to the Philippines for this case and another one involving a rig explosion where two of his clients working on a rig owned by Black Elk exploded.

Joe was one of three Louisiana lawyers ranked by Chambers USA for securities litigation in 2011. He has been named a 2013 Rising Star by his peers in the Class Action Administration organization.
